Dear Directory Users:

This directory is produced jointly by USDA Rural Development, Denali Commission, Alaska Humanities Forum, and with technical assistance from the Alaska Department of Community and Economic Development. It is one of the tools in the "Community Toolbox" designed to provide communities with information needed to plan, develop, manage, and sustain community service and infrastructure.

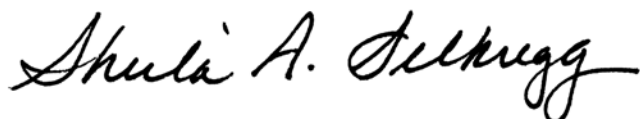

Knowledge is key to insuring the success of local control in rural Alaskan communities. Knowledge can unveil the resources that are often hidden in a maze of bureaucratic words and requirements. This directory is intended to transfer the knowledge of where the funding resources are directly to the people of rural Alaska. Once rural communities know what resources exist and where to find them, they can then select the source (or sources) of funding that best fit the community's needs.

Federal, state, and other funding entities seek to spend their money on projects that "fit" within their programs. The size of an agency's budget is determined by an agency's ability to effectively use its existing resources. With good information, communities can "shop" to find which mix of agencies or programs fit their community best. The community is the client that the agencies are designed to serve. With that in mind, please get to know how this directory works.

We know this directory isn't perfect. It's a first effort to bring a large amount of information together. Undoubtedly, we have left out some important needs or programs. As you use the directory, please note how it can be improved and fill out the feedback form at the back of the directory and mail it back to us. It is our hope that this directory will be updated every three years. It can be accessed on the Denali Commission's website at: www.denali.gov

We hope that you find this tool useful as you direct and manage change in your community.

Sincerely,

Dr. Sheila Ann Selkregg, State Director
U.S.Department of Agriculture, Rural Development

Introduction

This directory is designed to help you access government and non-government community development resources. Your community can use the Alaska Directory of Rural Resources to locate the right agency to meet your goals. When your community has the knowledge of where the resources are, you can then be in charge of pursuing those resources.

The Alaska Directory of Rural Resources was produced jointly by the U.S. Department of Agriculture-Rural Development (USDA-RD), the Denali Commission, the State of Alaska Department of Community and Economic Development, and the Alaska Humanities Forum.

It is one of the tools being developed as part of the "Community Toolbox". The toolbox is designed to provide your community with the information and resources necessary to independently pursue your goals and vision. When completed the toolbox will include:

- The Community Strategic Plan Guide and Form.
- A project scoping sheet that outlines a community's proposed project.
- The Alaska Directory of Rural Resources, a directory listed by project (for example: emergency vehicles, housing, schools, and sewer and water projects) with an "Agency Assistance Request" Form.
- A single federal pre-application or resource inquiry sheet used to apply to most funding sources.
- A map that shows what steps can be taken to help guide specific changes in your community and what information is available to your community based on where you are in the planning process.
- Guidelines for a plan summary or "walking plan".
- Basic community "How To" management information; information about governance, budgeting, record keeping, contracting, accounting and collections.

For more information on any of these tools, please call the U.S. Department of Agriculture-Rural Development at (907) 761-7705.

Using This Directory

The Alaska Directory of Rural Resources includes resources available from federal and state agencies in Alaska as well as non-profit organizations and foundations. This directory gets you to the direct contact for the resources you need.

Overall Organization

In order to quickly locate the resources you are looking for, the directory is divided into ten Major Directory Headings:

1. Communication
2. Community Buildings/Facilities
3. Community Services
4. Economic Development/Private Enterprise
5. Equipment
6. Government
7. Housing
8. Natural Resources/Environment
9. Transportation/Access
10. Utilities

Each of these sections is broken down into specific categories. For example, under "Communication", you find the categories: computers, distance education, internet service, and others.

If you are unable to locate a resource you are looking for, use the index in the back of the directory to help guide you.

An example using this directory:

Let's say you wanted to look for information on funding resources for a community hall-- how would you use this directory to find the resources? Follow these steps below:

- Turn to the Table of Contents on pages i - iv. Look through the Major Directory Headings in the Table of Contents and see which heading "community hall" best falls under. In this case, the heading "Community Buildings/Facilities" is most appropriate.
- Under the heading "Community Buildings/Facilities" you will find an alphabetical listing of all the categories found in this section, including "community hall". Go to page 14 as indicated. * Note that if the category you are looking for does not appear under the heading you expected, use the index on pages 289-293 in the back of the directory to look up the specific item.
- On pages 14-15 you will find a listing of 17 different programs that provide some type of resource for a community hall.

- Note that each program includes information about: resources available, who is eligible for the resources, who to contact, an E-mail address and website.
- If you glance through all of the programs and read the resources available, you will see that 14 of these programs offer some type of funding (grants, loans). Note that programs that offer resources in the form of grants and loans have the symbols "$$$" in front of the program name.

Contacting Resources:

Once you have located the agencies in the directory that meet your resource needs, you can either contact them directly by telephone, E-mail, mail, or by fax. On page ix, you will find an "Agency Assistance Request" form. Use this fax form to request assistance on your project from one or more agencies. Include information about your project such as a description, type of funding, estimated cost, start-up date, and information about the population served by this project.

Expect partner agencies to coordinate a response to your project or service request. Getting a coordinated agency response from the beginning helps you access more resources. When agencies work together, projects are often timed better, more complete, and sustainable.

Another useful tool to capture resources and complete your project is the Project Scoping Form on pages xi-xii. This scoping form helps you lay out important considerations that exist around most projects. As you fill it out, you'll be able to identify the steps that need to be taken to get your project done. Completing the sheet also helps you prepare yourself for the jobs associated with new projects.

If you have your Project Scoping Form complete, attach it to your Agency Assistance Request Form so that the agencies can better understand your project.

If you don't get a response back from the agencies, call them again and again!

* The Economic Development Administration of the U.S. Department of Commerce makes grants to public bodies (municipalities, Tribes, villages, states, some non-profits) which support the creation or retention of long-term private sector jobs. Economic diversification has been an increasingly important focus of projects in Alaska.

* The Economic Development Administration of the U.S. Department of Commerce makes grants to public bodies (municipalities, Tribes, villages, states, some non-profits) which support the creation or retention of long-term private sector jobs. Economic diversification has been an increasingly important focus of projects in Alaska.

AKInfo. AKInfo is the most up-to-date and comprehensive community services database in the state! AKInfo is designed to help Alaskans find needed services in their own community and communities throughout the state. Like a telephone book, AKInfo is a resource directory of individuals and agencies offering a wide range of services. The directory is supported by a database that contains the details of services provided by over 2000 public and private providers of health and human services throughout the state.

There are two ways to find needed services using AKInfo:

- AKInfo by Internet- Search the AKInfo database at www.ak.org for needed services. Search by community, service needed, or provider.
- AKInfo by phone- Please call us toll-free at 1-800-478-2221. AKInfo has operators available 24 hours per day who can help you find the service you need anywhere in the State. This is not an emergency service. If you need help fast call 911 or your local VPSO or Community Health Aide.

an inventory of programs and services which can provide economic development assistance to Alaska communities and businesses. Federal and State agencies as well as national and Alaska private nonprofit agencies are represented. This directory primarily describes those programs which focus on the creation and support of new industries, businesses and long-term jobs. It is designed to help communities match their economic development strategy with existing program resources which could support that strategy. The directory can be downloaded and printed for free off the internet at:
